

University of Phoenix's Cooperative Agreement with Canadian Institute of Financial Planning

University of Phoenix would like to announce its articulation agreement with the Canadian Institute of Financial Planning. Students who have taken Canadian Institute of Financial Planning courses are eligible to transfer up to 18 credits of their CIFP courses towards their bachelor's degree program at University of Phoenix Vancouver Campus or University of Phoenix Online.

University of Phoenix is accredited by The Higher Learning Commission and is a member of the North Central Association. Founded in 1976, the university is dedicated exclusively to working professionals. By offering a valuable, real-world education, University of Phoenix has become the largest private accredited university in North America.

At University of Phoenix, students can earn their bachelor's, master's, or doctoral degree in the most efficient and convenient way possible. Students take one course at a time for five to six weeks each and attend class one night per week. They learn from instructors who work in the fields they teach. And they earn one of the most up-to-date and relevant degrees offered anywhere.

To help students succeed in the workplace, University of Phoenix courses are taught with an emphasis on how to apply academic theory to real-world situations. Students work in learning teams that replicate the way work is done in the business world. The curriculum is continually updated to answer the current needs of business and industry as well as to reflect current research. All University of Phoenix instructors hold masters or doctoral degrees and are professionally active in the field they teach.
